

Abstract of the Disclosure

Reliability of a connection between two stations over a satellite link is improved by having a station periodically send a heartbeat message. Failure to receive a heartbeat message within a predetermined time results in a disconnect being declared and an attempt to reconnect to the other station.